Genoa - “We need to create a very small working group, between institutions and employer representatives, to map the traffic flows in the port and determine the problems, without any confusion about numbers.”

This is the proposal from Stefano Messina, the president of Assarmatori, which is the Italian shipowners' association. Meanwhile, Coop Liguria is launching an appeal to open the “Strada del Papa” or Pope’s road, within the ILVA site, to the trucks that supply supermarkets.

“The risk, if the city road system is not decongested, is of lengthening the routes with a cost increase of 1.5 million per year,” explained Francesco Berardini, the president of Coop Liguria.
