Genoa, Italy (PortSEurope) May 1, 2019 – Moby Group closes 2018 with revenues in line with the previous year and an increase in operating costs caused mainly by the rise in the price of bunkering, CEO Achille Onorato has said.

“Last year was not easy, but was characterised by the entry into new business areas, as well as the finalisation of important investments that are an integral part of a long-term strategy whose benefits we expect to begin to see as early as the first quarter of 2019”, Onorato noted.

Moby, Tirrenia-CIN and Toremar are companies of the Onorato Armatori group. First in Europe in terms of passenger capacity, the group employs over 5,000 people. With the three companies, the Onorato group connects Sardinia, Sicily, Corsica, Malta, the Tuscan Archipelago and the Tremiti islands with 48 ships, with about 41,000 departures at 33 ports in 2018.
